Brother Londrigan and Brother Jagers,

The men and women of the Wisconsin labor movement send you solidarity and strength as you stand strong against union-busting legislation currently speed-rocketing through the Kentucky legislature. Wisconsin workers know firsthand that Right to Work is wrong for Wisconsin, Kentucky, and every other state in the nation. We have seen similar legislation and union-busting attacks advance in Wisconsin.

Attacking the rights of working people to stand together and have each other's backs in the workplace through a strong union does nothing to create jobs or help our middle class. Your valiant efforts to educate citizens on the negative impact of eroding union rights has on our entire economy is important work. It is crucial in our continued struggle to build a more equal and just economy for working people.

Know you have our solidarity and that we are standing together with you in your fight. Do not hesitate to call on us for any support we may give as you continue to stand up for the rights of working people in Kentucky and across our nation. Every American should have the freedom and the right to a strong union.

In Solidarity,

Phil Neuenfeldt, President

Stephanie Bloomingdale, Secretary-Treasurer
